The clock on Old Main is still working, making it easier for students to see if they are late for class.

The Frick Center is where most of the college students meet for lunch, to check their mail or to just warm up by the fireplace.

Turning over a new leaf. Turning over a new leaf is a common phrase at Elmhurst College. Students started class on August 28, 1995, ready to have their lives filled with new experiences. Day to day, students are ready for whatever is thrown their way. At Elmhurst College, change is in the air. The new leaves have been turned and there are more to come.

INSIDE THE LEAF

Sample the thrill of college life. Hear the sounds of the students as they cheer on their fellow students in sports. Travel to Jamaica, California or Germany to broaden your knowledge during January Term. See your classmates or roommates in a new light on Homecoming, no longer sporting casual clothes but dressed to a T.

Personalities reflect the diversity of college students who are learning to work together not only in the classroom but also in their personal lives.

Notice the interests of the college students which range from putting on performances at the Mill Theatre, to playing sports, and to setting their attention on serious academic studies.

The persona of the college students changed when the individuals were enjoying going to parties together, performing on stage, going home for the weekend, or helping a roommate with homework.

The many individuals who attend and reside on a daily basis reflect the spirit of —ELMHURST COLLEGE.

Students take a brief time-out before attending to their other engagements.

THE BIG EVENT

Walking across the mall, a group of brightly clad individuals armed with hundreds of multicolored balloons make their way to the big tent. Music is playing, the smell of a barbecue fills the air, and spirits are soaring. What's the occasion? New Student Orientation!!!! Orientation is a time where all new students can get the great head start they need to be a success here at Elmhurst. A group of involved and hard-working students and administration spend months preparing for this extravaganza. Throughout the weekend, new students will have the opportunity to meet lots of people while participating in all the exciting and informative activities that are planned. Among the activities are an all-campus dance, a special show at the Mill Theatre, a boat ride on Lake Michigan, and of course, tons and tons of food at picnics and dinners!!! In other words, New Student Orientation is a great time for students to meet people, get to know the campus, and feel as if they really belong. Spread the word, New Student Orientation is the place to be!

During the chaotic, but exciting week of Homecoming, a lot of fun activities took place. On Tuesday, students made their own videos, called FUN FLICKS. This gave students the chance to have fun and show their talents. On Wednesday, in the Mill Theatre, our very own talented classmates acted out the musical Assassins. Assassins turned out to be very informative and entertaining. The exciting entertainment on Thursday was entering into a virtual world. VIRTUALITY allowed students to experience video games in a whole new way. Some students had the opportunity to fight against one another. The PEP RALLY at the PEC on Friday really pepped up the Bluejays. The Cheerleaders, Pom Pon Squad, and the Jazzy Jays (formerly known as Orchesis) all showed their talent. After a crazy, fun-filled week, the big day finally arrived. Our football game was played against Augustana College on Saturday afternoon. The game started out great, Elmhurst was in the lead. It turned out to be a suspenseful tie, then our Bluejays fell behind. They tried with hard work and determination to bring the score back up, but the Bluejays failed to recover. The final score was 35-7 in favor of Augustana. The festive Homecoming parade preceded the game. Students decorated cars and themselves to match the Mardi Gras theme. Later on that evening, the Homecoming dinner and dance took place at the Hyatt Hotel in Oak Brook. Homecoming was a great week and everyone seemed to enjoy themselves.

LEAVES CHANGING IN TIME

The Homecoming play this year was the dark musical Assassins, with music and lyrics by Stephen Sondheim. The cast of characters included some of the most infamous presidential killers in history, like John Wilkes Booth, Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, and Lee Harvey Oswald. Ted Waltmire, musical director, said that the "author John Weidman does not present a chronological history of the presidential assassinations. Instead, he plays games with time and space. Characters who live years apart meet, interact and become a force of history."

Director Alan Weiger commented, "It was a unique theatre piece that was unbelievably challenging. It was also an interesting glimpse into a different side of history."

The assassins try to encourage Lee Harvey Oswald, played by Temple Loper, to shoot JFK.

ALL THE LEAVES WITHIN THE PILE

The Elmhurst community and the College work hand-in-hand in making the city of Elmhurst a community involved city. A perfect example of how the college students involve themselves in helping their community was with the Lions Candy Day charity. This is a program to benefit those with sight and hearing impairments in all parts of the world. Students were asked if, in their spare time, they could adorn the Lions Club smock, have a charity can in their hand, and work in the streets, stand in between traffic, or get donations on the college grounds to help benefit those that needed help. When a donation was made, the individual received some of the Lions Club's candy. This was a positive effort on the part of the community and the college students.

Another example of how the community and college work together was with Halloween Helping Hands. This was a program in which all the Elmhurst community children were to come trick-or-treating on the college campus. This was to promote safe trick-or-treating for the children and also give the college students a chance to interact with the children in the community. One could positively say that Elmhurst is a community-centered city and the college is the center of it.

Kris Hewitt was an Alpha Sigma Phi who got dressed up for the party.

Paolo Romano was one of the many residents on campus who wore a costume when the kids trick-or-treated at his door.

Alpha Sigma Phi and Alpha Phi sponsored a Halloween Party after children trick-or-treated. It was a safe environment in which the kids had fun.

Some kids stuck their hands into covered bowls filled with fake eyeballs and brains.

Families from the Elmhurst Community enjoy games and refreshments after trick-or-treating.

VOLUNTEERISM

This September three Elmhurst College students embarked on a volunteer mission. Amy Vance, Catherine Lovell and Michelle were all accepted into DWAR (DuPage Women Against Rape). They each received over 50 hours of training in order to become advocates for rape and sexual assault victims and their families.

The DWAR program is connected with the YWCA located in Glen Ellen. DWAR volunteer opportunities include a 24-hour hotline which provides crisis counseling, referrals and information for victims, friends and family members of sexual assault victims. Hospital advocacy, which offers 24-hour immediate crisis intervention within 30 minutes of a rape victim being brought to the hospital, volunteers act as a liaison between the victim and hospital and law enforcement personnel, and also offer support to any friend or family members involved. Another service DWAR provides is legal advocacy. Advocates help victims as they work their way through the police/legal/judicial process. The advocate offers crisis intervention, explains police and court procedures, and interprets the victim's needs to the authorities. DWAR members have the opportunity to further their outreach by becoming a part of CAP (Child Assault Prevention Program) and Teen CAP. These women also have the chance to become a part of the Speakers Bureau, Take Back the Night, Stop Rape, and Fund-raiser Committee which funds DWAR programs and makes them possible.

These women are taking part in the serious war on violence against women. We applaud their courage and wish them the best in their line of volunteer work.

Chris Stutzman tries to balance his love of music with school by decorating his room with posters of various bands he enjoys listening to during the day.

Students fill their little free time with activities sponsored by different organizations. WRSE sponsored a concert called "Generation X" where people could listen to music, skateboard and scale walls all at the same time.

Some students make their own fun outside. Students, Amy Vance, Julie Lasch and Anne Duffy decided to have a mud fight in the Mall one evening.

THE TORN LEAVES

Students try to also study in between their jobs and school. Here are two students studying in The Frick Center during protected hour.

Balancing a college life is extremely difficult. An average college student takes on four academic courses a semester. Each course takes much reading, listening, note-taking and studying. Maintaining good grades is a hard task, especially when it is impossible to give your academics 100% of your time.

Most students are involved in at least one club, organization or sport. Many are involved in more. All demand much extra time and effort.

College life is expensive, especially for those who are paying their own tuition. Most students don't have rich relatives handing them money weekly, so getting a part-time job becomes necessary. Many students work on campus as part of a work-study program.

Along with all of the ins and outs of school work, college students need to maintain a social life. Some need to balance between at-home friends and school friends. Some students travel home for the weekend to see old friends and family. The students who stay on campus have different ways of keeping up on their social life. Some students get together and go out, others prefer to use their free time to relax and recuperate from their fully packed week.

The hardest part about balancing a college life is setting priorities straight. For most, academics is top priority, but with so much going on all of the time academics cannot be the only priority. Trying to maintain everything can be exhausting and stressful. Each student has his own individual way of dealing with each day as it is thrown at him or her. The best way to handle a busy college schedule is to take everything one day at a time.

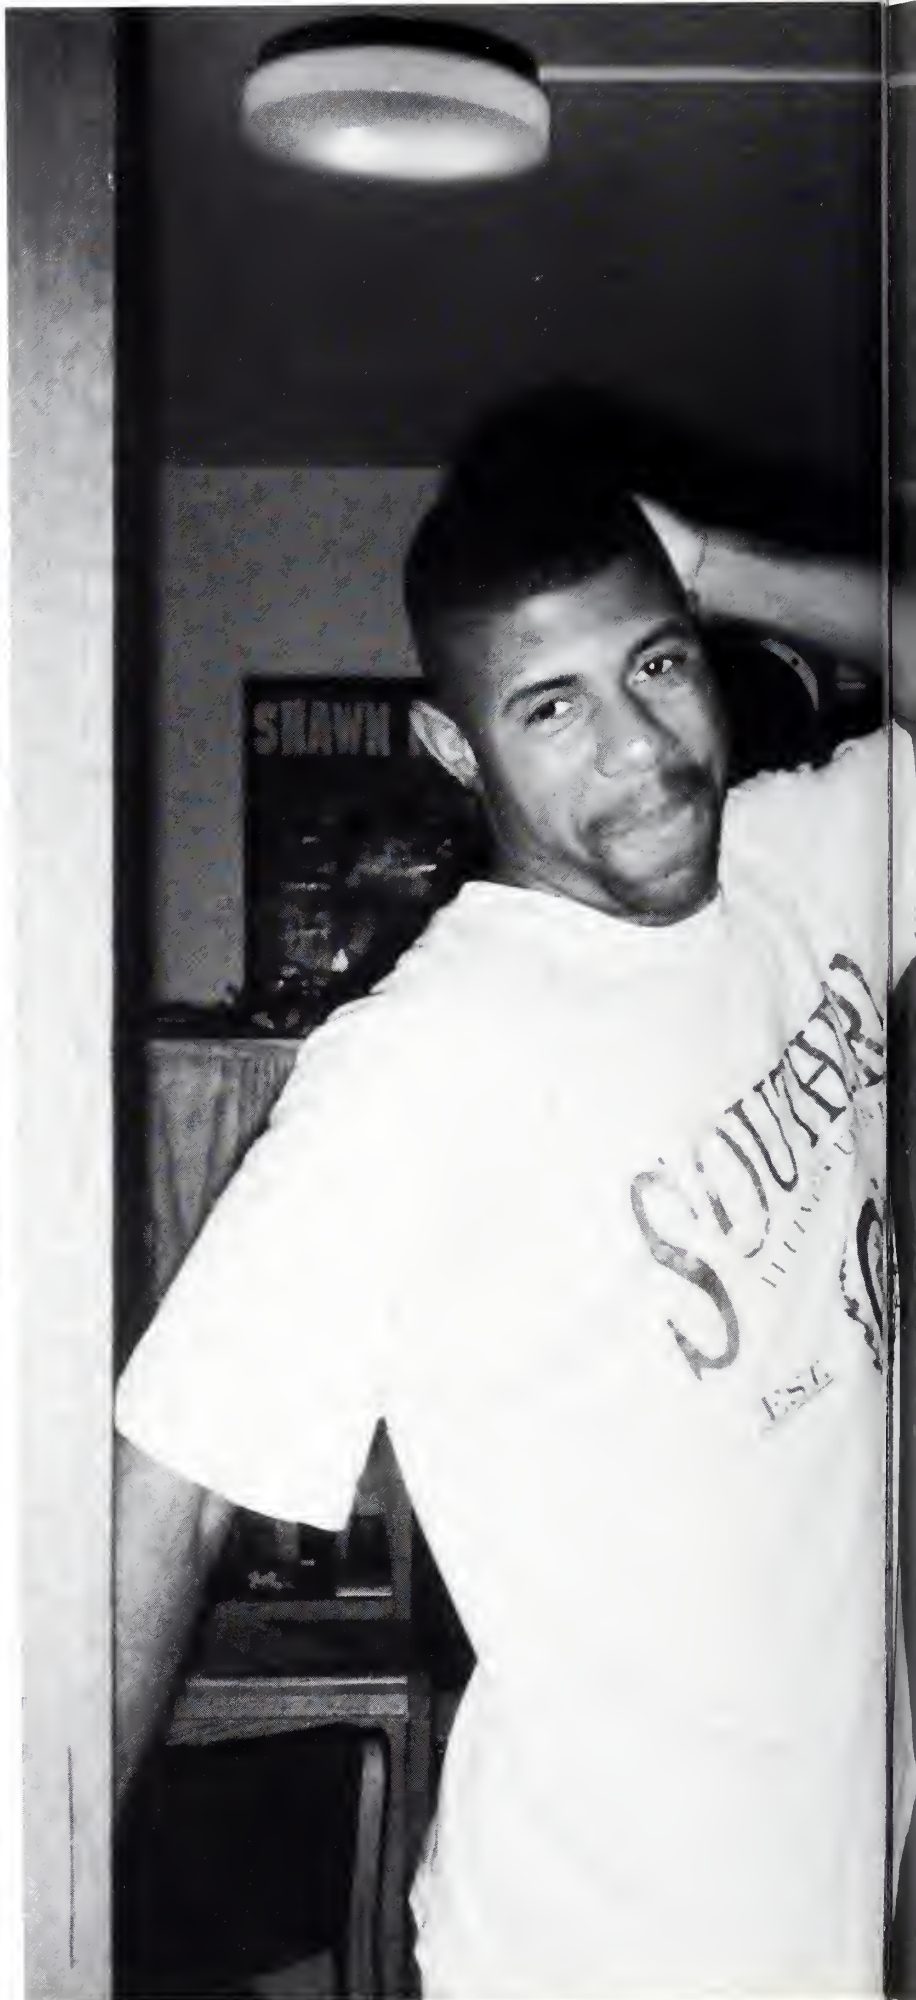

Dinkmeyer resident Drake Brown proclaims "My door is always open to everyone." This is a common sentiment among many residents.

The basketball court behind Dinkmeyer Hall is where many residents go to relax and socialize after a long day of classes.

Director of Residence Life Christine Smith gives Residence Life Coordinator Angela Schraml Anderson some moral support during summer training.

NOT FALLING FAR FROM THE TREE

For nine months out of the year, more than five hundred Elmhurst College students call the residence halls home. Many exciting changes occurred over the summer to offer more options to the diverse resident population this year. The change that had the most impact on residence life is that all four halls are now coeducational. This is a major change from last year when only two were coed, one was all male, and one was all female. Many of the returning resident students were against the change at first, but everyone seems to have adjusted nicely. There was new furniture purchased for each room, and all the halls were wired for improved television reception. Along with all the changes in the halls, there were many new faces added to the Office of Residence Life. Not only did the office change locations, but many new Resident Assistants and a new Residence Life Coordinator were hired to make living at Elmhurst College an enjoyable learning experience for everyone.

The RAs from Schick Hall and Stanger Hall learned to work as teammates during their summer training sessions.

RESIDENCE HALL SOCIAL SCENE

Always something to do on a Friday night

One of the biggest advantages of living in the residence halls is that there is always something to do. Social activities are a large part of residence hall life. Many of the organized social programs are planned by the R.A. staff. They plan activities that can be held in the hall, such as pizza parties or movie nights, or they take a group of students off campus, maybe to Chicago. Another group that is a source of social events is the Hall Councils. Hall Councils usually plan the larger events that affect all the resident students. Some of the events that the Hall Councils sponsored this year were the Dinkmeyer Hall Hayride during Homecoming, the Niebuhr Hall Halloween Dance, and the Rock the U behind Schick Hall. But, despite all these organized events that happen in the residence halls, most of a student's social experiences come from the other residents that live in their hall. It is the spontaneity of the midnight trips for food, or just gathering in someone's room to watch a movie that makes living in the residence halls fun. Just get to know the people that live in the hall and there will always be something to do on a Friday night.

HOME AWAY FROM HOME

Residence Halls are real learning experience

"Living in the halls may take some getting used to, especially if the student has never had to share a room or bathroom, but it's all worth it."

Living in the residence halls and away from home is an experience that everyone, who is able, should try for at least a year. In that year, a resident student will learn many valuable lessons that they will carry with them for the rest of their lives. As many professionals in residence life say, more than eighty percent of what a student learns at college is learned outside the classroom. Probably the most important thing that a student will learn by living in the residence halls is to be self-sufficient. Resident students have to learn to do laundry, time management, and to prioritize. Resident students have to learn what is most important... socializing, studying or sleeping. Living in the halls might take some getting used to, especially if the student has never had to share a room or a bathroom, but it is all worth it. Extraordinary problems that occur can be discussed with the R.A. staff. Part of an R.A.'s job is to listen to the problems and concerns of the residents. Even though living in the residence halls might force students to make some adjustments, the friends that are made and the lessons learned will never be forgotten.

RESIDENCE HALL GOVERNMENT

What does it take to be a leader ?

Being involved in a close knit community such as a residence hall is a good chance to discover what it takes to be a leader. There are three distinct opportunities to become involved as a leader in the residence halls: Resident Assistants, Hall Councils, and the Residence Hall Association. R.A.s are selected by the Office of Residence Life staff and an R.A. selection committee composed of students. Once selected, R.A.s go through summer and winter training to become acquainted as a staff, learn techniques to deal with situations that might arise in their halls, and to learn their duties and responsibilities. They work closely as a group to provide an enriching experience for all resident students. R.A.s are there to help students with personal difficulties, to socialize, but also to be a person who is responsible for enforcing the policies of the residence halls. Hall Councils are open to all resident students from each hall. The officers are elected by all the students in a hall. The main purpose of Hall Councils is to deal with internal issues of the hall, as well as to provide another social outlet for the students at the College. RHA is a new organization that is made up of elected students from each residence hall. They deal with issues common to all aspects of residence life and also network with other colleges to see what the trends are in residence life around the country.

MAKING IT FEEL LIKE HOME

Personal touches are essential

"The most important thing...is realizing that this room is going to be home for the next nine months."

The most important thing about living in the residence halls is realizing that this room is going to be home for the next nine months. Students like to make their rooms as personal and comfortable as possible. This is accomplished by bringing many things from home, including televisions, VCRs, carpeting, refrigerators, and computers. But no one can remember everything, so here are ten things that our resident students think of as essential to a happy life in the residence halls:

1. High school memorabilia
2. Extra lighting/lamps
3. Wall decorations and posters
4. Toilet paper
5. Pictures and picture frames
6. Air fresheners
7. Poster Putty
8. Full length mirror
9. Hangers
10. Cordless phone

These are just some ideas and there are countless others. Keep these in mind when packing for next year!

Greek WEEK

Promoting unity within the Greek System

Every spring an event is held on campus to honor all recognized greek organizations. Greek Week is a week-long project developed by a committee made up of members from each of the sororities and fraternities. There is an activity planned for each day of the week, culminating in the Greek Games on Saturday. Greek Games is a combination of events each group participates in and receives points for the place in which they finish. This may encourage competition but, more importantly, it encourages participation. At the end of Greek Week, all greeks have positive feelings not only about their own group, but for the greek system as a whole.

Many people look forward to Greek Week. It is a time to honor greeks and their accomplishments. A new addition to Greek Week is Greek Awards. There are awards for the Most Improved Chapter, Outstanding Greek Man/Woman of the Year, Outstanding Contributions to Philanthropies, Highest GPA, and Chapter of Excellence.

Why go GREEK?

You get out of it what you put into it

I first thought about this question when I pledged almost three years ago. My answer to anyone who asks this question is "Why not? There are so many advantages to joining a sorority." I didn't realize this at first. I transferred into Elmhurst College second semester of my freshman year. I commuted from Addison. As a typical commuter, I came to campus for class and then went home. This was very different from the routine I was used to in high school, because I was very involved in activities there. The greek system at Elmhurst gave me the opportunity to "come out of my shell." I waited until my sophomore year to go through Rush.

Sorority life has given me many opportunities. I met many new people and have had a great opportunity to enhance my leadership skills. My sorority has also given me the opportunity to help with various philanthropic organizations. As with any organization, you only get out of it what you put into it. Joining Sigma Kappa has made my college experience one I will treasure forever.

TAKING A NEW TURN FOR THE SEASON AHEAD

Even before the school year begins, many days are spent sweating and aching while preparing for the grueling season ahead. Every day is like clockwork, the dedicated members of each team sacrificing their early morning summer days preparing for the upcoming competition. Through the whining and complaints, jaded players put forth all their effort to show that all their hard work of practicing did pay off.

The members of the teams prove to all their competitors that they are indestructible and can face any team that comes their way. In the end all that matters is not whether the teams won or lost, just that the dedicated players were shown that their hard work was appreciated.

Freshman right-handed pitcher Todd Niedzwiedz (Lombard-Willowbrook), who garnered team MVP and All-CCIW First Team honors, topped a list of 25 lettermen for the men's baseball Bluejays (14-24, 6-14) and fourth-year head coach Clark Jones. Joining Niedzwiedz on the All-CCIW list were junior third baseman Pete Pacione (Bensenville-Fenton) and junior right fielder Jason Blankenburg (Downers Grove-Downers Grove South) as second team and honorable mention honorees, respectively.

Niedzwiedz compiled a 4-3 record and 4.40 earned run average with team highs of 43 innings, seven starts, five complete games and 35 strikeouts (versus only 10 walks). Niedzwiedz also had a .317 batting average (19-for-60) in 28 games with 15 runs batted in, and played errorless in the field in 32 chances (20 putouts/12 assists). In CCIW play, Niedzwiedz had a 3-2 record and 4.65 ERA with team highs of 31 innings, four complete games and 24 strikeouts (versus only nine walks). He batted .265 (9-for-34) in 14 games.

RAKING LEAVES TOGETHER

Getting the full college experience involves a lot more than quizzes, exams and daily lectures. It includes being active in the happenings on campus and in the community. Bluejays participate in organizations that promote leadership skills, give insight into possible career choices and provide an opportunity to meet new people.

The organizations such as Campus Life Council and Union Board focus their attention on campus issues while the Elmhurst College Volunteer Center is involved with creating activities to help the Elmhurst community.

Those who are interested in organizations that focus on a certain field of study or leadership are invited to participate in the various recognition and honor societies. Some of these are Beta Beta Beta (biology), Pi Mu Epsilon (mathematics), Order of Omega (leadership), Delta Mu Delta (business and administration), and Sigma Pi Sigma (physics).

Performing groups such as Shouts of Joy, Orchesis (Jazzy Jays), and the Vocal Jazz Ensemble also invite students with a love and ability for song and dance to join.

Orchesis dancers (Jazzy Jays) finish their hot routine to Janet Jackson's "Throb" at the men's basketball Midnight Madness.

YOU HAVE FINALLY FINISHED TURNING THE COLLEGE LEAVES

Every morning when you awake, the day credits you with 86,400 seconds of life. With every night, it counts as lost whatever part you failed to invest for good purposes during the day. It carries over no balance. If you fail to use the day's deposit, the loss is yours. There is no going back, no drawing against tomorrow. You have finally finished turning the college leaves.

Here's the future your education has provided: health, happiness, and success. It is now time for you to turn over a new leaf and prepare to start the first day of the rest of your life.

EVENTS

HISPANIC HERITAGE

A MONTH LONG CELEBRATION

H.A.B.L.A.M.O.S. with a guest speaker Jorge Morales.

From September 15 to October 31, 1995, Elmhurst College hosted a number of events sponsored by H.A.B.L.A.M.O.S. in celebration of Hispanic Heritage Month. The dates for the month to honor Hispanic heritage were chosen because September 16 is the independence day of Mexico and the close of the month is on a Mexican holiday, "El dia de los muertos," the day of the dead.

The month began with a Latino Art Exhibit in the Frick Center Founders Lounge on Monday, September 18th. Artists such as Santa Barraza, Sandra Antongiorgi, Guillermo Delgado, Ricardo Hernandez and Benjamin Varela were featured in an exhibit titled "Nopalitos, Tostones y Cafe." The art exhibit closed on October 16th.

On October 10-11, the Hispanic Heritage Guestship was held. Rev. Jorge Morales-Hernandez is the pastor at the First Congregational Church in Chicago. A reception for them was held in The Founders Lounge on October 10th in the Frick Founders Lounge and his address was given on October 11th in the Recital Hall in Irion Hall. The address was titled "Seeds of Independence." The Rev. Morales-Hernandez came on both days and made several classroom visits to discuss the common reading, "Yo soy Joaquin," by Rodolfo Gonzales.

The month closed on October 31 with a moving ceremony of remembering friends and loved ones who have passed away, including members of the Elmhurst College Community. This ceremony was led by the Elmhurst College members of H.A.B.L.A.M.O.S.

DAY OF ATONEMENT

MILLION MAN MARCH

On October 16, 1995, the Afro-American men held a "Day of Atonement." This was motivated by the Million Man March held in Washington, D.C. La Shawn Jakes, Duncan Ward, and Darryl Williams were the organizers of the march and approximately 37 men marched and 15 women were staunch supporters. The march was briefly televised on Channel 7 news and was supported by Richard Hazley, Larry Foy, and the Rev. Joseph Richardson Sr. The purpose of the march was for Afro-American men to atone with themselves, their women of finer womanhood, communities, parents and grandparents, and younger brothers and sisters following in their footsteps.

DECADE OF EXCELLENCE

February 9th and 10th marked the 20th anniversary of the Elmhurst College Leadership Conference. The annual Leadership Conference is sponsored by the Campus Life Council and the Student Affairs Office.

The theme for this year's conference was "Tradition: Two Decades of Excellence." The conference featured motivational speakers and workshops that focused on developing student leadership potential. The conference also focused on the future of campus organizations. This year over 100 Elmhurst College students participated in the two-day conference.

The Conference Committee included: John Barr, Kris Hewitt, Phil Inglis, Cheryl Leoni, Brenda Meyers, Carrie Nuzzo, Dr. Kathleen Simons, Renee Smith, Stacy Stein, Mary Tubbs and Mary Jo Zervas.

CAMPUS POLITICS

WTTW Channel 11 Chicago

Politics came to the Elmhurst College campus by way of the WTTW, Channel 11 Chicago Tonight program. On February 22, The Frick Center became the host for a debate of the major candidates for the United States Senate. The Chicago Tonight program featured John Callaway as the moderator of candidates Bob Kustra, Pat Quinn, Al Salvi, and Dick Durbin. The one-hour debate provided the Elmhurst College community the opportunity to experience primary politics firsthand.

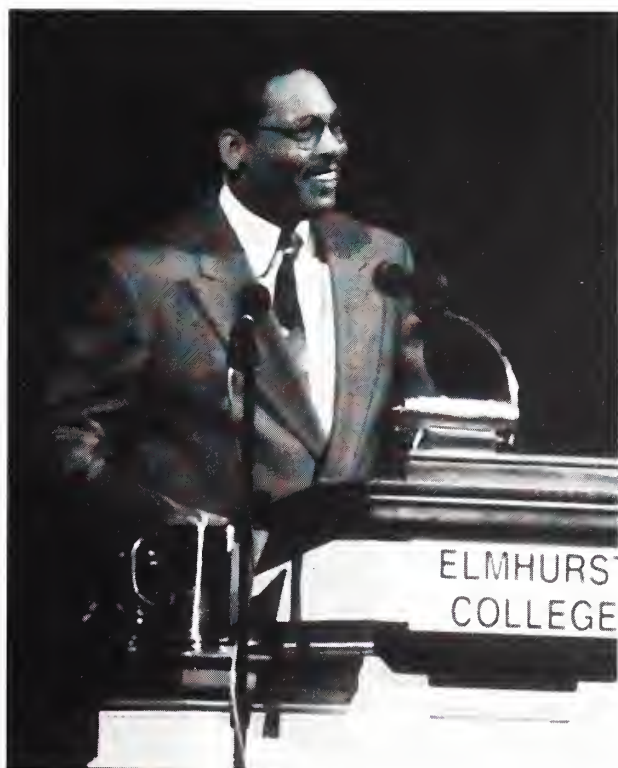

MAYA ANGELOU

Dr. Maya Angelou lifted more than 2,800 hearts and minds that filled the College's Physical Education Center for "An Evening With Maya Angelou." In her address Angelou stressed the importance of breaking through the clouds of discrimination. She emphasized that "what you need is to find someone who is courageous. Courage is the most important of virtues. Without courage, you can't practice any other virtues consistently."

Below: Richard Hazley, Director of Multicultural Affairs, introduces Dr. Angelou.

A CELEBRATION OF AFROCENTRICITY

Black History Month

Elmhurst College students competed in the annual Black History Month Oratory Contest on February 7 in The Frick Center. The theme was "A Celebration of Afrocentricity."

Students chose to compete in either the published work category or the original composition category.

Aisha Wilks, LaShawn Jakes, Cherise Clowers and Angelique Andrews all were winners at the Oratory Contest.

Dr. Joyce A. Joyce, Professor of English and Associate Director of the Gwendolyn Brooks Center at Chicago State University, was the invited guest judge for the oratory contest.

Prior to the contest, students arranged for a variety of ethnic foods to be brought to the Founders Lounge to give those in attendance the opportunity to see, taste and smell these different foods.

THE UNITY PICNIC

On April 16, 1996, Elmhurst College had its first Unity Picnic. The purpose of this picnic was to bring Students, Faculty, Staff and Administration together for the purpose of uniting for one common cause. The idea was proposed and executed by LaShawn Jakes.

"It's about time that students step up and do their part to promote unity and harmony among every individual at this institution. The goal of the college may be to become a more diverse community of learners, but because it's on paper doesn't mean that it's being executed. In my mind, diversity is more than ethnicities. It includes acceptance of gays, lesbians, bi-sexuals, the physically challenged, introverts, extroverts, etc....," LaShawn said.

The picnic had a turnout of roughly 300 supporters. Even though it rained, students, faculty, and administration had a 37-inning softball game after the picnic.

JAZZ FESTIVAL

The 29th annual Elmhurst College Jazz Festival was held this year over the dates of February 23-25 in Hammerschmidt Chapel. The festival over the past several years has grown to be one of the largest collegiate jazz festivals across the country. This year's fest added a sixth session to the weekend bill to accommodate the large number of groups that wished to perform. The 29th festival brought 35 college jazz bands, combos, and vocalists from as far away as North Dakota here to Elmhurst College to be judged and critiqued by the four featured guest artists. These guests included trumpeter Randy Brecker, baritone saxophonist Ronnie Cuber, Kevin Mahogany as the featured vocalist, and long-time veteran to the Elmhurst Jazz Festival pianist Frank Mantooth.

Randy Brecker has been shaping the sound of jazz, R&B, and rock and roll for more than two decades. His trumpet and flugelhorn performances have graced hundreds of albums by a wide range of artists, from James Taylor, Bruce Springsteen, Chaka Khan, George Benson and the Parliament Funkadelic, to David Sanborn, Horace Silver, Jaco Pastorius, and Frank Zappa. Some of Randy's milestones include the formation of Blood, Sweat and Tears, the joining of forces with Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers to develop the fusion group Dreams, and then over the years teaming up with his brother Michael to form the Brecker Brothers. The Brecker Brothers were to become a band of immeasurable influence and impact. Over the course of time the Brecker Brothers' albums have received countless Grammys and Grammy nominations. This year Randy traveled to Elmhurst College to perform with long-time friend and fellow New Yorker Ronnie Cuber.

Ronnie's big band experience came from the groups of Maynard Ferguson and Woody Herman. Cuber's most known for his work while he played with Charles Mingus. This talented baritone saxophonist has performed all around the world with numerous jazz groups in all the major festivals, and Elmhurst was grateful to welcome Ronnie to this year's fest.

ELMHURST COLLEGE Jazz Festival

Jazz Band with Special guests: Kevin Mahogany, Ronnie Cuber, Randy Brecker.

Kevin Mahogany is one of the most extraordinary singers on the scene today and clearly in the tradition of the great male jazz vocalists. With a beautiful, rich baritone voice and an impeccable sense of time, he sings everything from blues, ballads, intricate jazz and so much more.

Pianist, composer, arranger, and clinician Frank Mantooth is no stranger to the Elmhurst College Jazz Festival. This year's appearance was his sixth appearance. Currently, Frank has four albums released and his latest release, Sophisticated Lady, features fellow festival artists Randy Brecker and Kevin Mahogany, and former festival artist Pete Christlieb, Pat LaBarbera and Bobby Shew.

Lastly, the Elmhurst College Jazz Festival had a special performance by the University of North Texas One O'clock Lab Band. The group performs under the direction of Neil Slater. This group is internationally acclaimed and has toured Australia, Canada, Europe, Mexico, and Russia. Former members of the One O'clock include Lyle Mays, Lou Marini, Marc Johnson, Steve Houghton, and Gregg Bissonette.

This year's festival was a great success. Next year the Elmhurst College Jazz Festival celebrates its 30th Anniversary February 28-March 2, 1997.

BARBARA MIDDLETON

On Monday, March 4, 1996, Barbara Middleton came back to her Alma Mater to deliver the keynote address, "Women's Issues: A Global Perspective," to mark the opening of Women's History Month.

Middleton is a licensed master social worker and advanced clinical practitioner. Over the years she has helped women with issues such as eating disorders, child abuse and victimization of women.

In front of a moderate-sized crowd in The Frick Center, Middleton discussed her experiences at the 1995 United Nations Fourth World Conference on Women in Beijing, China, and her experiences as a social worker.

"Throughout my travels I found many of the same types of problems and concerns among all women, which opened my eyes to the global aspect of being," Middleton said. "(Women) have earned the equality of access, but not of value."

A 1964 graduate of EC, Middleton has served on the faculty of Southwest Family Institute, and as a case worker for Child Welfare in Texas. In 1987, she traveled to the Soviet Union for the Diplomat Intergenerational Women's Envoy and in 1988 was a major part of putting together the Women's Global Peace Conference. Last March, Middleton was honored with the Social Worker of the Year Award from the Dallas Unit of the National Association of Social Workers.

"Being asked to speak at my Alma Mater is the greatest honor I have ever received," Middleton said.

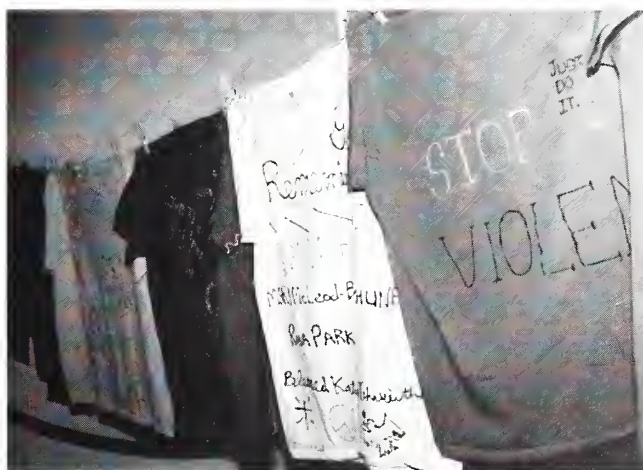

WOMEN'S HISTORY MONTH

Clothesline Project

On March 26-27, Elmhurst College joined more than 250 existing clotheslines by creating its own clothesline as part of The Clothesline Project, a grassroots movement which bears witness to the violence that women experience simply because they are women.

The display was held in the Prospect Room of The Frick Center. Shirts for the Clothesline were shirts, blouses or t-shirts, with the following color code: White for women and girls who have died of violence; Yellow or Beige for women and girls who have been battered or assaulted; Red, Pink or Orange for women and girls who have been raped or sexually assaulted; Blue or Green for women and girl survivors of incest or child sexual abuse; and Purple or Lavender for women and girls attacked because of their sexual orientation. These colors were not mandatory if another had special significance.

Shirts were designed in any way with the only restriction being that complete names of violators not be included (first names or initials were permitted). The display was sponsored by the Issues and Ideas Committee of Union Board and the Offices of Residence Life and Student Activities.

March is National Women's History Month and Elmhurst College held activities throughout the month to educate students about the history of women all over the world.

Elmhurst hosted six main events in celebration of Women's History Month. The month began on March 4th with a keynote address by Barbara Middleton, EC Class of 1964, of Dallas, Texas.

Barbara talked to a moderate-sized crowd in The Frick Center on "Women's Issues: A Global Perspective." (see facing page)

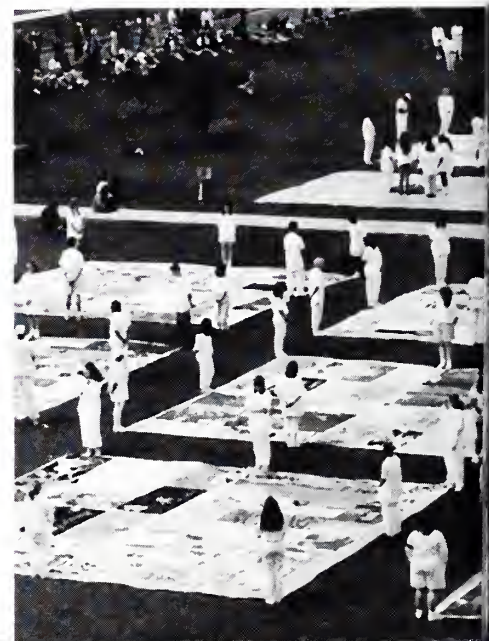

The second of six events was a Spring into Wellness program entitled, "Risk...Yours, Mine and a few Tips." The program was presented to the student body and faculty on March 6th in The Frick Center by Janet Rand, adjunct faculty member in the Center for Business and Economics. The program was sponsored by the Office of Counseling Services.

On Tuesday, March 6th, Adina Boyer, EC Class of 1987, and Claudine Sirgant of Zenith Electronics Corporation presented a program entitled "The Job Search Process." This program was sponsored by the Office of Career Services and was held during protected hour in The Frick Center.

The Clothesline Project: A Visual Display of Shirts on a Clothesline Bearing Witness to Violence Against Women was held in The Frick Center on Tuesday, March 26th, and Wednesday, March 27th. This display was held in from 11:00 a.m. - 7:00 p.m. Members of the College Community could make their own shirts to display to symbolize the violence towards women in their own lives. This program was sponsored by the Offices of Residence Life and Student Affairs and the Union Board.

The Psychology Department sponsored a program on Thursday, March 28th entitled "Family Therapy Interventions". The program was presented by Mrs. Yolanda Carter of Mound City Psychological and Educational Services in St. Louis (Issac Carter's mother).

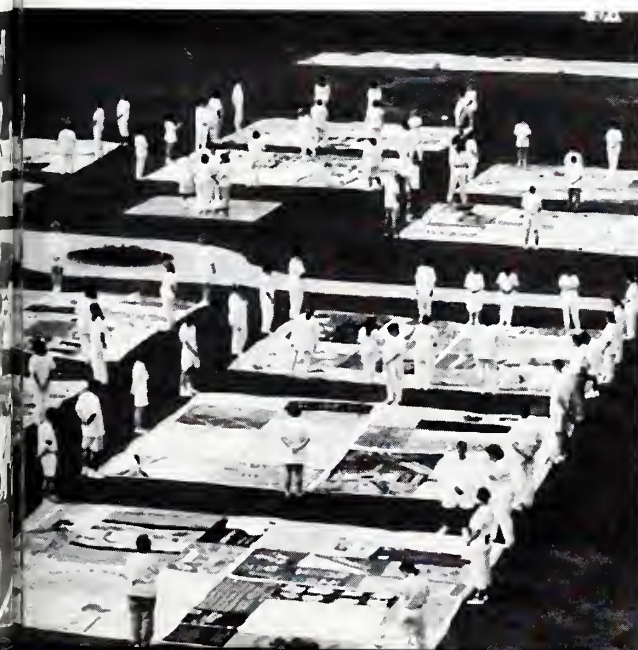

The month ended with a concert by The Skimmingtons, an all female alternative rock band. Two of the four members, sisters Patience and Shannon Falk of Elmhurst, are EC students. The band played on March 29th in The Frick Center.

NAMES PROJECT

The NAMES Project AIDS Memorial Quilt was on display on the Elmhurst College Mall this spring. The event marked the first outdoor event in the Midwest or on a college campus anywhere.

The AIDS Quilt served as a reminder of how many lives this epidemic has touched. Members of the community bonded together by holding hands as the Quilt was unfolded panel by panel.

SPRING FLING

To commemorate and celebrate the quasquicentennial, the college proudly displayed the 125th Anniversary Banners throughout the campus and the community. At the February 9th unveiling ceremony, Dr. Lawrence B. Carroll, co-chair of the 125th Anniversary Committee, stated that "this is a celebration of the long history with an eye on building our future as an educational institution of learning in the Elmhurst Community."

The College kicked off its celebration with a combined Founders Day and Honors Convocation on May 10. The Anniversary will continue its celebration through the actual anniversary date in December.
